One of the Costest and Most Comfortable Places Imaginable—Where the Famous Porcelain Service is President Harrison and his family have one of the cosiest and most comfortable dining-rooms imaginable, and it is situated in the north wing of the Executive Mansion, overlooking the spacious park and Lafayette Square. High ceilings are a feature of all the rooms in the White House, and the dining-room forms no exception, the walls being tinted a subdued terra-cotta, which gives a rich aspect almost like a mahogany-environed apartment. In the centre of the dining-room is a massive round extension oak table, the legs being moulded and carved in an artistic manner, while leather upholstered manogany chairs are placed at convenient intervals around the board. I wo wicker high chairs are also conpicuous in the room, their occupants being the diminutive members of the Harrison household, and they are al-ways present at breakfast and luncheon there are no visitors to be enter tained by the family.

AN INTERESTING SCENE. Facing the east in this room is a large open fireplace, in which a blazing wood fire imparts a picturesque and pleasant appearance, especially during the crisp fall and winter mornings and evenings. On the mantel over the fireplace is a handsome bronze clock, surmounted by an exquisite Antiope in bronze, and an tique brass sconces and candelabra are prominent on each side of the mantel-piece. Just off from the mantel is the china closet in which is stored 1,000 pieces, composing the famous White House porcelain service, the order for which was given in the spring of 1879. As it was to be used only for State occasions Mrs. Hayes desired that it should combine elegance and ap-propriate American decoration. De signs were furnished by Theodore R. Davis, Hlustrating exclusively American fauna and flora, and his success is best shown in the following letter which he received from the White House:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON.

DRAR SIR: My absence from home when the beautiful porcelain set arrived is my spology for the delay in sending you my thanks. The exquisite State dinner service executed by Haviland & Co. from original designs by you is universally admired by all competent judges of works of art who have seen it. It is a delight to study the beautiful forms and paintings. One almost feels as if the ceramic art should be used for no other purpose except to gratify the eye. I congratulate you on the accomplahment of the task which you so kindly imposed upon yourself in the production of the beautiful designs which have added fresh laurels to American art. Sincerely, Lecy W. Hayes.

August 2, 1880. EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, August 2, 1880.

In addition to the Haves dinner service for State occasions there are two other sets of china in the White House, one of which, purchased during the Grant administration, is banded with royal purple, while in the centre is the scal of the United States—an American eagle with outstretched wings and hav-ing in his talons a number of arrows. Its breast is covered with a shield, from which is shown a streamer bearing the legend, "E Pluribus Unum," and over the eagle's head is a constellation of stars surrounding a sun burst.

Another dinner set was purchased when Lincoln was President, and this is distinguished from the other White House china as the gold-band set, although, like the others, the United States seal is shown on every piece of the service. Since the Hayes service has been set apart for State occasions the Harrison family eat their meals in the private dining-room of the White House, using the Lincoln or Grant china, as the steward sees fit. There is no danger of a scarcity of china at any entertainent in the Executive Mansion, for the three sets in use number about twenty-five hundred pieces of the handsomest table-ware ever shown in this or any other country. GLITTERING CRYSTAL WARE Leaving the china closet the next object in the dining-room is a massive mahogany buffet, upon which glittering crystal ware is abundant, and the entire southern wall of the apartment is con-cealed by this piece of furniture. Conspicuous on the west side of the room is a magnificent sideboard, also of the finest mahogany, the carving of which is a work of art, and some of the handomest pieces of Theodore Davis' skill a porcelain decoration are displayed the ample shelves. Delicate weby lace curtains screen the family from the observation of curious outsiders, and few persons who have noted the spry movements of half a dozen waiters in a long room adjacent to the conservatory imagined that they have been so close to the President's dining room. A rich velvet carpet of a dark dining-room, and owing to its thickness not a sound is made by the feet of the waiters as they pass to and fro in min-istering to the wants of the White

As usual in such cases, there are a great many applicants. The Assistant Paymasters-tieneral, Colonels Rodney Smith and William A. Rucker, and pretty nearly every officer of the Pay Department have filed applications. The impression prevails at the War Department that Major A. B. Carry, Pay Department or Colonel C. M. Terrell, Deputy Paymaster-General, will receive the appointment. Colonel Terrell is credited with influence with Mr. Harrison. The pay of Paymaster-General, who has the rank of Brigadier-General, is $5,500 per year.

Naval Constructor Philip Hichborn and Chief Engineer Philip Inch of the Navy have made the report of their visit to the Niles Tool Works of Hamilton, Ohio, to have made the report of their visit to the Niles Tool Works of Hamilton, Ohlo, to inspect the bending rolls constructed by that company for the Mare Island Navy-Yard, and which are the largest in the world. The report describes the test: A plate of steel, 15 inches in thickness, was passed through the rolls, backward and forward, several times, and was then bent to an arc of a circle whose radius was about five feet. The rolls were theo raised and lowered by power—first parallel and then at an inclination—as well as bringing the two centre rolls close together, all of which was done by the work of one man. The machine has four wrought-iron forged rolls 223 feet in length between journals, supported in two housings of massive proportions. Two of these rolls are placed in the centre of the housings, one vertically above the other. They are 32 inches in diameter and are used to pinch the plate and carry it through. The other two rolls are placed one on each side of the centre rolls. They are ased to bend the plate and are 255 inches in diameter. The side rolls are so placed as to move very closely by the lower centre roll. The rolls are driven by a pair of vertical reversing engines, and all the operations of starting, stopping and reversing both engines can be perforned by the engineer from one position. The whole machine is mounted on a heavy cast-iron sole plate, eighteen inches deep, which is to be bedded on a

The cost of building the rolls and transporting them to the Pacific Coast is enormous, and the firm cannot have made much from the contract. It enables them to bid on future work of the same character successfully, and as there will probably be similar maand as there will probably be similar ma-chines built for at least two navy-yards— New York and Norfolk—Niles' people will lose nothing by the present contract.

J. J. Garth, formerly a naval cadet, has had a claim against the Government for seven months' pay. He resigned December 17, 1888, from his cadetship, and the resignation was accepted. Later he withdrew the resignation on the consent of Secretary Tracy, who was advised by the Attorney General that such a withdrawal was illegal and that the cadet, having once left the service, the power of reappointment was vested alone in the member of Congress to whose district the cadetship was accredited. On July 22, 1889, Garth was notified of the facts in the case, and immediately claimed pay for the service. immediately claimed pay for the service from December to July. There is some dissatisfaction among the officers of the Ninth United States Cavalry over the assignment of Lieutenant Charles Young, the colored graduate of the Military Academy, to that regiment. The only other colored officer in the Army is Lieutenant John H. Alexander, a graduate of the class of '87, who is on duty at Fort Du Chesne, Utah, and who is also attached to the Ninth Cavalry. Lieutenant Young, on graduating last June, was made an additional second lieutenant, and within a few weeks has been commissioned a second lieutenant to fill one of the two vacancies in the cavalry arm. The Ninth Cavalry officers regard the regiment as imposed upon, when a place for Lieutenant Young could have been found in the Tenth Cavalry.

The examination for naval constructors continues at the Navy Department. From seven ambitious candidates for appointment as assistant naval constructors four weeks ago the number has fallen to two, Mr. Hart, the draughtsman in the Bureau of Construction and Repair, and Assistant Engineer De Witt C. The candidates had appealed to the Secretary regarding the severity of the examination provided, claiming that undue prominence was given mathematics in the valuation of subjects. Most of the candidates withdrew on the Secretary's refusal to change the examination. The illness of dates withdrew on the Secretary's refusal to change the examination. The illness of Mr. Redgrave will prolong the examination another week, and the opinion at the Department seems to be that there will be no result. The list of constructors is not limited by law and appointment can be made at the option of the Secretary, with or without examination. The Fifth Battalion of the District of Columbia Militia is about to organize an association for mutual, social and financial benefit. A constitution and by-laws will be presented for the consideration of the battalion next Friday night. On the sickness of a member who is without income a benefit is to be paid, and on the death of a member the expenses, not exceeding $60, are to be defrayed by the association. A system of fines is also to be instituted and a button for use in civilian dress is to be adopted. The association is to hold monthly meetings, and all officers and members of the battalion are eligible to membership. The dues of the officers are to be $1 per month and of privates 50 cents per month. The Board of Supervisors of Steam-vessels, which is in annual session in this city, visited Virginia Beach vesterday to test a contrivance invented by A. J. Newell of New Jersey. The invention consists of tin, cone-shaped, attached to which is a rod. The device is intended to carry a line from a vessel to the shore, across the current, and works on the principle of the old tide ferry. The inventor is a brother of exgovernor Newell of New Jersey, who, while a member of Congress, introduced the first life-saving bill.

The board will publish to its report an interesting table, giving the result of an examination of the prevalence among pilots of color-blindness. RICHMOND PARK ACRES SOLD TO ection of the city took an upward tendency last week, growing out of several large syndicate transactions, the most notable being the sale of the Richmond Park tract the Messrs. Goldsborough, the figures aggregating $105,000, although but a few years ago the same piece of land was pur-chased for $7,500. No better evidence is chased for $7,500. No better evidence is needed of the continued appreciation of suburban property, and it is understood that the syndicate interested in the purchase will at once subdivide their property into building sites and put them upon the market. This property commences at Klingle's Ford and runs northerly from Woodley Fark, and is just east of ex-President Cleveland's Oak Vlew.

In discussing the sale Mr. Goldsborough said that the price obtained is in every respect satisfactory and represents a large spect satisfactory and represents a large percentage upon the cost of the tract to its previous owners, also a syndicate inter-ested in northwestern real estate in the deep, which became the property of the National Union Fire Insurance Company about the 1st of December, 1889.

THE NEW INSURANCE BUILDING.

An advantage possessed by the proposed building for the insurance company is that all the rooms, sixty-six in number, will be well lighted on all sides and ventilated in the most approved modern style. No wood whatever, will be used in the construction of the building, and the floors will have from keams and girders, while the walls will be of terra cotta, the spaces between them and the floor arches being filled in with cement. Even in the roof the fireproof will be carried out by the use of slate and fron, and the architect, Glenn Brown, has made a model building and one which cannot fail to attract favorable comment.

Upon the F street front of this lot there is a frame dwelling, and in the rear is a brick stable, the material of which was sold at auction yesterday. Contracts will probably be awarded to morrow for the excavation for a fireproof six-story structure to be known as the National Union Brilding. When the lot was purchased the figure paid, $46,000, was regarded as very moderate, for this made the site cost about $11 per square foot. For an additional $50,000 the company propose to make a decided improvement on this square, which is likely to present a somewhat torn-up appearance in a few days.

St. Cloud Building, at the corner of Ninth and F streets, will join the humble days after consummating the purchase of the new site Nobie D. Larner of the Insurance Company was offered a considerable advance on the $46,000 paid for the property. "I knew in advance," said Mr. Larner, "abut the proposed improvement at the Saint Cloud site, and this may account for the eagerness of my company to buy the lot which we now possess. It is not for sale, no matter what figure may be offered, for we know a good thing when we get it about as well as anybody else in Washing-

These two transactions in suburban and inside property are a fair reflex of the con-dition of the real estate market in the District at present, and talks with the dealers indicate a healthy tone in all other sections. Northeast property is rapidly enhancing in value, and especially since a number of building permits within the past year show that the tide of population is pushing out in that direction. Comfortable dwelling houses for persons of moderate means are being made a feature of the improvements in this part of the city and in the vicinity of Lincoln Park and Kendall Green, and there is a marked increase in brick houses, usually about three stories high.

Ohio Railroad will sell excursion tickets Washington to New Orleans and return at rate of $27.50 for the round trip. For at least eight centuries the Church has blessed candles with solemu services, and their use at the celebration of mass is supposed, on good authority, to date back to spostolic days. Lights are an evidence of respect and
